FRANK ACCAVITTI III

Bishop Foley Catholic Principal

The past year has been unlike any in the history of our school, and the Foley Family came together like never before. From a 48-hour pivot to online instruction in March 2020, to new cleaning and management procedures being created, communicated and followed, our staff has worked tirelessly to keep our institution open for students. We've remained a model of in-person, full instruction for our students, and could never have done so without a dedicated faculty, adaptable students and understanding parents. I never imagined that we'd have to fight so hard to stay open against a once-in-a-lifetime pandemic, but the strength of the Foley Family only increased throughout it all.

Things still look different here at the school, from distancing markers to altered schedules and seating, but I'm proud of the fact that, when faced with an insurmountable problem, we didn't take the easy way out. Everyone has worked so hard, and will continue to do so, all so that Bishop Foley Catholic can deliver the same experience to students and their families we promised to them, and ourselves, in our mission statement. We remain Undeniably Catholic, continuing weekly Masses, seasonal Reconciliation, and grade-level retreats in a socially distanced fashion. We are Academically Excellent, with a diverse slate of course offerings that continue, from Algebra I to AP World History and all between, even when a student is quarantined and must be "Zoomed in." We are open to all, continuing to provide financial assistance to families even with the loss or postponement of so many fundraising events, so that every student who wants a Catholic education can receive one. We are founded in Christ, instilling the importance of acts of service as a key part of each student's spiritual foundation; BFC students leave our halls as servant leaders, ready to spread God's love as a beloved son or daughter of Christ. In short, we are Bishop Foley Catholic High School, now and forever.

To every person, be they alumni, parent or friend, that has helped to keep us going through these difficult times, know of my deep appreciation for you. Our students and staff are here because they want to be here, and have faced the trials of this pandemic with strength, perseverance and most of all, a great sense of care for one another. We may not have easy days, but we know that better ones are coming, as we continue to support ourselves and each other through comradery, conversation, prayer and love. No challenge has been too great for us thus far, and as we follow the path of Christ who went before us, none shall be. Thank you, always, for your support, prayers and dedication as a member of the Foley Family.

Yours in Christ,

Frank Accavitti III, Ed.S.

EVELYN SCHAUBLIN Director of Advancement

At the time of this writing, I find myself thinking back on the day my husband Mike and I found out we were pregnant with our first child. One of the first things out of Mike's mouth was, "How are we going to pay for Catholic grade school? We have to start saving!" Today, we find ourselves sending in the final college tuition payment for our youngest son's bachelor's degree after 28 years of investing in education, 24 of which were for Catholic education. We were lucky enough to do it. I know the education our sons received was the strong base they needed to succeed in college. For that, we are blessed!

Catholic education today is a sacrifice for families. There are many families that want to give their children a Christ-centered education, but it is out of reach for them. As the Director of Advancement, my job is to bring in the funds that help families send their children to Bishop Foley. Every year, we work to increase funds so more students can be enriched with the kind of education my children and I received. Giving back is a way of doing it.

Every year, we hold the Annual Fund. For those of you that have given to it already, thank you! For those of you thinking about it, thank you. For those of you wondering what you can do, consider this: How many times do we see the commercials for the forgotten pets or the children in need? The commercial often states, "for only 30 cents a day," or "for only $5 a week," you can support their cause. These are installment options for giving. My husband and I are going to do the same. Every day, we will donate a dollar for every one of our three sons — Christopher ('10), Andrew ('12) and Timothy ('17) — in honor of the education they received at BFC. $3 a day won't break us, but not being able to give a child a Christ-centered education might.

Think about what Bishop Foley means to you. Some of you are still in college and maybe you can only afford $10 a month. That's great. Maybe you are empty nesters and you can afford a bit more. That's great, too! We would love your support however you can give it and as often as you can give it. We ask you to prayerfully consider donating. An envelope is attached within this publication.

On a separate note, I ask you to continue to pray for our students and staff. We have been fortunate to be here in-person since the school year began, except for the state-mandated closure of all high schools. Everyone involved in the day-to-day operations and education here at BFC has been a hero. We want to be in-person. The kids need to be in-person. For the good of our entire community, please pray that we can continue to educate our students so they can grow together and In Him.

Evelyn Schaublin
Director of Advancement

ADMISSIONS ADVENTURES IN THIS UNUSUAL YEAR

2020 was a wonderful opportunity for change, and in that spirit, Bishop Foley Catholic has significantly restructured the admissions process to improve the experience of applying for both prospective families and current staff. BFC has transitioned to a new admissions and enrollment management software, FACTS, to create a more cohesive experience for families.

Foley has also had to adapt to a new way of connecting with prospective families. Some popular admissions events, such as High School Nights and Open House, have had to be reformatted to adhere to public health guidelines. Two virtual High School Night sessions were hosted, featuring live talks with staff members and prerecorded messages from current students discussing what they love about Foley. While adjusting to a new virtual medium was undoubtedly a challenge, the engagement received from prospective families during both sessions has inspired more virtual opportunities like this in the future to expand outreach beyond normal demographics.

Likewise, in-person admissions events were a resounding success, as Foley was fortunate enough to be able to hold two appointment-based open houses in fall and spring — as well as a virtual version that is available to view online — a Welcome Party and two Welcome Picnics. Thanks to the dedication, cooperation and resilience of its staff, parent volunteers and visiting families, BFC rose above the challenges posed by the pandemic to share everything that makes Foley so special with future Ventures.

FROM THE DIRECTOR OF ADMISSIONS

If there's one thing we've learned in the past year, it's that life is unpredictable, and that sometimes, you have to just play the game of life with the cards you've been dealt, no matter how good or bad your hand.

When I graduated from Oakland University last year with a bachelor's degree in journalism, I certainly didn't expect to find myself working in a high school, much less at my alma mater. But that's the kind of curve ball that life throws at you, and sometimes, it's the best thing that could happen to you.

I couldn't be more excited to be back at Bishop Foley, and although it's only been five years since I left here, so much has changed in that timeframe. My return to Foley was about as anticipated as the COVID-19 pandemic's abrupt redefining of life as we know it, which means I've gotten really good at dealing with "unprecedented times." And believe me, high school admissions this year has been anything but, well ... unprecedented.

The COVID-19 pandemic may have complicated things, but it hasn't made them impossible. Our school community has brought that sentiment to life this year, and as we prepare to welcome the Class of 2025 to the Foley Family, I am reminded of and inspired by our school's unwavering strength in even the most difficult of times, a quality that I already see in so many of our future Ventures.

There's a quote from one of my personal heroes, the late Carrie Fisher, that I've found myself citing an obnoxious amount of times this year, but it's one that is particularly relevant: "It's not what you're given, it's how you take it." Life as we know it may have changed, but it still goes on, and that is what makes it such an exciting adventure.

All the best,
Trevor Tyle ('16)
Admissions Director

2014 GRADUATE VENTURES INTO THE REAL WORLD — AND THE ODDS ARE IN HER FAVOR

For many graduates, post-college employment complications and cancellations are among the many blows dealt by the COVID-19 pandemic. But for Bishop Foley alumna Ashley Rapp, that obstacle quickly became an opportunity. At the time the coronavirus had officially impacted Michigan, Rapp was finishing her Master of Public Health degree in epidemiology. Preparations were already underway for her thesis submission and commencement speech, then suddenly, the world came to a halt. COVID cases, hiring freezes and unemployment rates all skyrocketed while college students' glimmers of hope continued to plummet.

"This is the time where we need public health the most, yet it was really hard to break into the field at such a point of change and fear and a lot of questions," she said. "I have the skills, I have the necessary education to make a difference right now, and so I really felt like I needed to do something."

Having interned for the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Rapp was deployed to the Detroit Health Department, where she assisted in data analysis and accessible communication to the Detroit community. From there, she transitioned into a full-time position as an epidemiologist for Henry Ford Health System, where she continues to utilize data and statistics to better understand the effects of the pandemic on various populations.

"It's our job in this space to make sure everything we do know is useful and helpful for people," she said. "We're not scaring them, we're not fear-mongering. We're just really trying to be as supportive as possible and be there for the people we're serving."

As an epidemiologist, one of Rapp's areas of focus is the social determinants of health, many of which were drastically impacted by the pandemic. Rapp cited food insecurities stemming from loss of income as one of the most prevalent, yet overlooked, of these issues.

“ I thought that my role in this pandemic was just watching and learning, but I realized, as so many issues are being brought to light during the pandemic, that, even though I was young [and] new in the field, that didn't mean that I didn't have something important to say and that what I was working on wasn't valid.”

Inspired by St. Therese of Lisieux's motto to "do small things with great love," Rapp and her sister Olivia ('16) volunteered for Forgiven Harvest, a nonprofit organization that aims to address hunger and food insecurity in the Detroit metropolitan area.

Rapp's endeavors to help underrepresented groups has extended into the Chaldean community, for whom she has advocated equal representation in healthcare for several years. Last year, she spearheaded a campaign encouraging voter turnout among Chaldean and Assyrian American women for the 2020 election as part of this initiative. The movement eventually caught the attention of Michigan Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, who Rapp had the opportunity to interview during a Facebook Live session.

"Being able to directly talk to the governor was important to me because, as a young Chaldean woman, a lot of people in my community never had opportunities like this back in the day," Rapp said. "Sometimes we lose sight of the fact that there's so much going on besides just a presidential election, and that, a lot of the time, these local things impact us even more than anything at the federal level."

Rapp has attributed much of her success to her experiences at Foley, which she said she could not have had anywhere else. She credits the debate team with helping her find her voice, and the swim team for forcing her out of her comfort zone — "they threw me in the water and realized I couldn't float!" Student Council gave her the opportunity to learn and grow alongside her sisters, Emily ('15) and Olivia, and boyfriend (now fiancé) Stephen Redding ('14), who also served as representatives.

"It was so dorky," she quipped, "[... but] it was just so fun to have all my people in one place."

It was the teaching staff, however, that had the most profound impact on her — namely, Spanish teacher Shonna Proctor.

"She was this woman with a huge personality ... everything that I wanted to be," Rapp said of Proctor. "She was confident, she was empowered, she spoke her mind, and those were things that, at the time — I don't know, I was 14, I didn't feel comfortable doing any of that, but I wanted to ... I wanted to be as happy and as confident as her."

Rapp also cited Erin Masen's psychology class as an influence on her decision to study psychology as an undergraduate, and theology teacher Ken Pullis for teaching her about leadership and authenticity.

According to Rapp, her experiences as a Venture are encapsulated by one big takeaway — try everything.

"I think having that attitude and that drive to make yourself uncomfortable while trying to find what you love is really the best way to challenge yourself," she said. "For me, it paid off."

HEART OF FOLEY AWARD WINNERS HONORED

Two Foley Families balance busy work and life schedule with dedication to annual events

Each year, Bishop Foley Catholic recognizes those whose passion for BFC shows throughout volunteering their time, efforts and talents to further the growth and well-being of the school and its community. Many of the most dedicated Foley Family members have been honored through this Heart of Foley Award, and this year, three more deserving individuals join this meritorious group.

During the 2020 Annual Auction, BFC Advancement Director Evelyn Schaublin was elated to announce Mrs. Patty Landrith as a Heart of Foley Award recipient. Patty has been involved with Bishop Foley since 2008, and while her two children (Matt '12 and Jenna '17) have since become Bishop Foley alumni, she continues to dedicate her time and efforts to the Annual Auction. Patty has held the position of Auction Chairperson for Acquisitions for several years, and oversees the donations and creation of each basket, gift set and experience that becomes available for bid at auction.

"A very deserving nomination; a very deserving individual," said Rich Uebbing, husband of the late Amy Uebbing, for whom the auction is now held in loving memory. "I know you would have been at the top of Amy's list."

During the Annual Auction, which was virtual this year, Karen and Tim Maskill, who are also Heart of Foley Award recipients, presented the glass, heart-shaped award to Patty. The award was announced live on a broadcast stream for the event for all attendees to share in celebrating her recognition.

While Patty's contributions to Foley are a blessing enough, another dedicated family was honored at the 53rd Annual Senior Awards Ceremony in April of 2021.

Jim and Gretchen Reichenbach have dedicated their time for over a decade, spanning the time their four sons (Ryan '14, Grant '16, John '18 and Curtis '21) attended BFC. Gretchen has been known as "team mom" for the cross-country, track & field and soccer teams, as well as successfully influencing the Annual Cookie Walk for the past nine years. Her efforts as a chairperson have helped to nearly double the funds raised.

Both Jim and Gretchen have also poured hours of their time into mentoring and volunteering for The Foley Freeze, Bishop Foley's FIRST Robotics team, for the last 11 years, assisting in all aspects of the team's image and engineering success. Their passion for Foley and their desire for its success is continuously seen in their actions.

Bishop Foley is blessed to have such a passionate group of parents and volunteers who become integral members of the Foley Family, and the community is so grateful for their continued efforts.

JIM & GRETCHEN REICHENBACH

Jim and Gretchen Reichenbach have dedicated countless hours to several Bishop Foley clubs, teams and events, including FIRST Robotics team The Foley Freeze, Track & Field and the annual BFC Cookie Walk.

PATTY LANDRITH

Mrs. Patty Landrith has contributed to the success of the Annual Auction for the last several years as the Chairperson for Acquisitions, a full-time commitment!

UPDATE ON SOME OF OUR BELOVED RETIRED STAFF

SHERRIE SHEEHAN

Math Teacher from 1994-2019

With her two new grandchildren, Hannah and Rowan, travel opportunities, and new hobbies like puzzle building, the difficult decision to retire after 25 years of teaching just seemed to “add up” for math teacher Sherrie Sheehan. Although she stepped down from full-time responsibilities, her passion for the school and community keeps her at BFC, where she continues to substitute teach.

While she misses talking and sharing about math with students and staff daily, Sherrie is excited to have more time and opportunities to be involved in the Foley community through attending football and basketball games, as well as her favorite fundraising events, including the Reverse Raffle and Annual Auction.

“I loved all the events that brought the students and staff together,” Sherrie says, recalling some of her favorites being the talent shows, Walk-A-Thon, Venturelympics and especially the Michigan Mathlete Contest. She fondly remembers being involved with Student Council and the Spirit Week festivities, from decorating hallways to the skits each class would prepare for their theme for extra spirit points each year.

Outside of her dedication to Bishop Foley, Sherrie is enjoying having additional time to travel to Florida, organize the house and most importantly, spend time with her grandkids and her cockapoo, Trixie. Even with all these pastimes, the staff and students at BFC are blessed and grateful that Sherrie continues dedicating her time to being such a large part of the school community, both during school hours and after.

MARILYN WELICKO

English Teacher from 1998-2019

After more than two decades of teaching students how to forgo filler words and seek out symbolism in Shakespeare, English teacher Marilyn Welicko ended a long and illustrious career at Bishop Foley Catholic last year in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Though she called starting retirement during a pandemic “a little surreal,” she also acknowledged the opportunities it has given her to pursue hobbies such as pottery, making stained glass, hiking and a plethora of “DIY ventures” at her new home — which she credits to YouTube and hardware stores.

While Welicko, a traveling enthusiast, longs to vacation internationally “once the world is back to ‘normal,’” her heart still lies with the Foley Family.

“I miss the day-to-day interactions with students most,” she said. “There were always moments of laughter and smiles, and I enjoyed hearing how a student’s day was going or what was new in his or her life.”

Likewise, Welicko’s presence on campus, from her classroom’s ever-expanding collection of rubber duckies to her favorite quips — notably “that’s just a bunch of hooley!” — has been deemed irreplaceable by students and staff alike, and will be remembered for decades to come.

CONQUERING THE COVID-19 REQUIREMENTS

Bishop Foley clubs and sports adapt to the many unique restrictions set by school and state

Since nearly 90% of Bishop Foley Catholic students participate in at least one extracurricular activity, the majority of the student body have been affected by the unique circumstances put in place this school year. Despite these changes, the dedication and adaptability of coaches, mentors and teachers have allowed our programs to continue to inspire and enrich the student population in a variety of new ways, from the performing arts to athletics.

EXTRACURRICULAR CLUBS

With large gatherings restricted, many BFC teams and clubs who compete or perform have found unique solutions to continue to practice their passion safely.

The BFC Forensics team has continued to hone their public speaking skills in preparation for competition, which usually take place at local Catholic high schools. While most participants have competed from the comfort of their home by joining in to Zoom tournaments with laptops or iPads to stream their performance, BFC students opted to dress professionally and meet on campus for their scheduled performances.

"[Our] students want to compete here at school because they feel like it would mirror what a real tournament would feel like," said Carol Osborn, who coaches the team. "Thanks to our administration and with a little pre-planning, our team has been able to keep socially distant and perform. We've arranged for each student to be in a separate room so that they are not in any danger of spreading germs to their fellow teammates."

The Foley Freeze, Bishop Foley's robotics team, also had standard competitions moved remotely for both the 2020 and 2021 seasons. This year, in place of gathering thousands of students, mentors and parents together, the FIRST organization has crafted a unique competition experience to optimize social distancing and safety. Team members met safely in person on campus and virtually via Microsoft Teams, brainstorming for new challenges to supplement the time dedication usually required for multiple competitions.

Rehearsals and requirements have been impacted for the performing arts as well. For the fall play, choreography was adapted for social distancing, and masks were amended into the costuming. Drama director Mimi Lewalski paid careful attention to who handled props on stage, how characters interacted without direct contact, and best practices for those behind the scenes.

While both "Harvey" and the spring musical, "The Pirates of Penzance," were performed to a limited crowd, the annual Christmas concert transitioned exclusively to a virtual audience. Rehearsals were condensed into videos, which were uploaded online for students to share with their families. To conclude the performance schedule this year, the Spring Concert & Art Show was hosted for a limited audience at BFC with a livestream available online.

While these steps are not ideal, the performing arts department is proud to have been able to continue to extend these experiences to passionate students while prioritizing their safety.

ATHLETICS

The fall and winter seasons for our various athletics programs have been tumultuous, with games and championships cancelled due to health concerns. However, this did not stop athletes and coaches from being recognized, from students making the Division 7 All-Region Rosters and football coach Brian Barnes being named as Coach of the Year, to swimmers setting new records and qualifying for the State Finals.

Fall sports were grateful to complete the majority of their seasons, with awards and honors being earned across cross country, boys soccer, football, swim and volleyball. BFC Football qualified for the Division 7 District

Championship to conclude their season.

Although the official playing season for winter sports began late, teams continued to meet for practice and scrimmage to develop skills, teamwork and ethics even while being unable to compete with direct contact. In February, ice hockey, basketball and wrestling were able to rejoin bowling in active competition. Sanitary measures continue to be in place to ensure safe environments.

In addition to playing their respective sports, many BFC athletes participate in the BFC chapter of Catholic Athletes for Christ, where students participate in missionary activities in the community.

THEOLOGY TEACHER PUBLISHES FIRST BOOK

Tim McCormick on his inspiration and creation of "Confessions of an Ugly-Bible Reader"

In addition to his many duties as the Theology department head at Bishop Foley Catholic, hosting bible study events at Guardian Angels Catholic Church and being a spiritual leader to many, as well as a husband and father, Tim McCormick has recently become a published author. While discussing his process and vision while writing "Confessions of a Ugly-Bible Reader," McCormick elaborated on the reason he was inspired to begin writing.

"I teach freshmen Theology Scripture, so I'm always in the back of mind thinking, 'how do I encourage my kids to read scripture more?'" McCormick said. "So the book itself has those students in the background, including adults in my Bible study and Bible school-type instruction, so I want to encourage them to get into the scriptures, not in an overtly-academic sense or looking at the Bible as a manual. It's not a manual, either — it's something to live with every day and to struggle with, not always take easy answers."

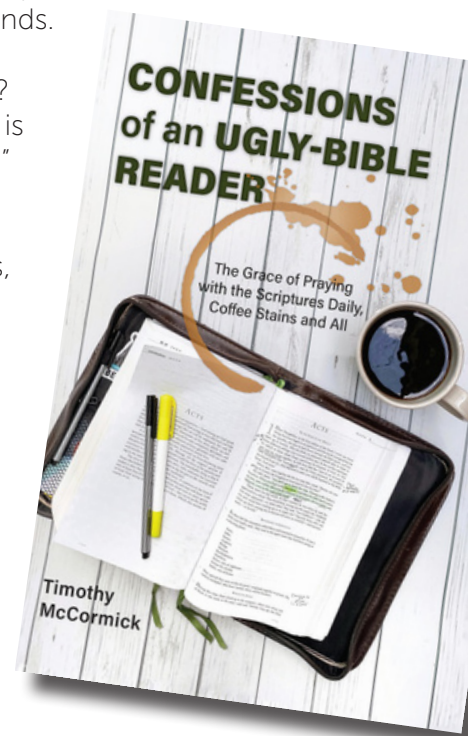

With this in mind, McCormick sought to find ways to bring the act of embracing Scripture to his readers in a new light, including the importance of making the Bible your own and something you want to read from.

"Confessions' goes back to an idea of just being honest and struggling with the text," he said. "The reality is, when you read from your 'ugly Bible,' you're encountering God of the every-day. I start the book by explaining an experience: I was at a prayer group 20 years ago, there was this lady who was probably in her 70s and she had this big Bible. It was held together by ... duct tape and rubber bands. I looked through it and it was written in, she had underlined almost the whole thing, clearly had written and read it over 40 years. I said, 'Would you ever want a new one? This is going to fall apart,' and she said, 'No, this my most treasured possession.' This is something she had read and communicated with God in for decades. It inspired me."

"Part of my Bible has coffee stains on the edges," continued McCormick. "But every time I see it, I laugh. That's what the Bible should do. It's a true encounter, because God meets us in the ordinary. You think of burning bush moments with Moses, and those happen, but God doesn't do that most of the time. It's changing my kid's diaper, it's not cussing the guy out who cuts me off when I'm driving to work in the morning — those encounters. So those are my confessions, moving away from that and meeting God in the ordinary, and trying to encourage people to do the same."

Tim hopes that readers of "Confessions of an Ugly-Bible Reader" are able to find their Bible and allow it to transform them while personalizing it into part of their lives. "Confessions" is now available for purchase online.
